INTRODUCTION

The premise of this book was to compile the genealogies of three Heffernan family groups who had in common the following: 1) in the early 19th century, they lived in or near Killenaule Parish in the Barony of Slieveardagh, County Tipperary before emigrating from Ireland to America, and 2) after emigrating, they settled near one another at Plymouth, Pennsylvania. Part of the task was to ascertain how these three branches were related, if in fact they were.

The three groups were founded by: John Heffernan and Mary Hogan (see Branch 2); by Richard Heffernan and Anastasia Boney (see Branch 3); and by Thomas Heffernan and Catherine Boney (see Branch 4). All three couples were married at Gortnahoe, Tipperary. John and Mary lived at Lanespark, while Richard and Anastasia, and Thomas and Catherine, lived nearby, at Mardyke, both in Killenaule Parish.

During the course of my research I discovered a fourth branch, founded by Thomas Heffernan and Catherine Shelly. This branch had no known connection to Pennsylvania. However, Thomas Heffernan (Branch 1) and John Heffernan (Branch 2) appear to have been brothers. The two families lived next door to one another at Lanespark; and John's wife and daughter acted as godparent for several of Thomas and Catherine's children. I believe that both were the sons of Patrick Heffernan and Catherine Neagle.

Similarly, Richard Heffernan (Branch 3) and Thomas Heffernan (Branch 4) appear to have been brothers, the sons of Humphrey Heffernan (a miner living at Lickfin) and his wife, Anastasia Ryan. Richard (Branch 3) and Thomas (Branch 4) each married at Gortnahoe to a woman named Boney, and both lived for a time at Mardyke, a mining village between Killenaule and Gortnahoe. Both died in Ireland, after which their widows and children emigrated, settling at Plymouth, Pennsylvania.

INTRODUCTION

I could not ascertain the relationship (if any) between Thomas and John (Branch 1 & 2) and Richard and Thomas (Branch 3 & 4), but there are connections that suggests cousinship: Patrick Heffernan, son of John (Branch 2) and John Heffernan, son of Richard (Branch 3) married sisters, Margaret and Mary Fennelly, and lived next door to one another in Pennsylvania.

This book is the culmination of four decades of research that began about 1978, when I first corresponded with my great-aunt Sister Paulus (Margaret Dwyer), a nun in the order of the Sisters of IHM. She conveyed what she knew about the emigration from Ireland to Pennsylvania of her grandmother (Anastasia Heffernan Maher) and mother (Catherine Maher Dwyer). It was a start. In the 1980s, the late Peg Brubaker, an avid Heffernan researcher, shared her work documenting the many descendants of Patrick and Mary (Fennelly) Heffernan. By 2000, the Internet had become a useful tool for genealogists. In 2005, Nancy Heffernan Slovik emailed her collection of transcripts of the Irish Parish Registers, only recently become available online. In 2011, William M. Heffernan made contact and shared more Parish Register transcripts, as well as his genealogy of the descendants of John and Catherine (Morris) Heffernan. More recently, Pat Maher DeMario shared her genealogy of the descendants of John and Margaret (Fennelly) Heffernan, and many other exciting discoveries made by her and overlooked by me. Many others contributed in ways great and small. For their generosity and encouragement, I am especially grateful.
